Cultural heritage is an indispensable part of each nation. On the one hand it forms the ground for national self-esteem and for its recognition by the world community. On the other hand it creates cultural diversity of the world and favores intercultural rapprochement and exchanges. Cultural diversity forms favourable conditions for cultural exchanges and for the flourishing of the creative ability. Bearing in mind that this ability develops the most intensively in the childhood, it’s necessary to encourage cultural exchanges between children and involve them in the study of cultural diversity.

To the organizers, participants and guests of the International cultural and educative project “Children are the mission of the world”

Dear organizers, participants and guests of the festival!

Dear friends,

On behalf of Moscow government and for myself I heartily congratulate you on the opening of such a great and socially significant project!

One of its main objects is to contribute to the development of cultural diversity in the world and by this way to the creation of a new - more open, more creative, more democratic - world.

In many cases negative phenomena of the present days may be explained by the non-actualization of the creative aspirations of the youth

That is why it’s so important for everybody, irrespectively of the nationality, religion and mother tongue to fulfill his true potential.

I’m sure, Internatuonal cultural and educative project “Children are the nission of the world” will encourage the strengthening of friendship and partnership between Russia and Austria and clear the way towards creativity for the young talents.

I wish all the participants every success on this way, and I wish the project long years of steady and fruitful work.
